

New cartoon,
Girls & Sports,
makes debut
in sports today
Page E2

Sports

E

NEW HAVEN REGISTER

www.nhregister.com

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 2005

New comic strip makes debut in sports

From staff reports

A new comic strip, Girls and Sports, begins appearing in the New Haven Register sports section today.

The strip, by Andrew Feinstein and Justin Borus, takes a humorous look at two things near and dear to the hearts of many young, single sports fans through characters Bradley, Marshall, JoAnn, Harris and "The DW" (Dream Woman).

It will appear daily on Page 2, along with another comic, Gil Thorp, as part of a new design at the bottom of the page.

The first 30 days of strips are designed to introduce readers to the characters, themes and style of the strip. After that, the content will become more current as strips are pegged to news of the times.

"We think New Haven Register readers will like Girls and Sports because the comic strip routinely explores many topics not seen often in other strips such as sports, working out, dating, relationships, 'the bar scene' and much more," Feinstein and Borus said. "Since so many New Haven residents live active lifestyles and many are passionate sports fans, we feel Girls and Sports is a great fit for the Register."

Readers are encouraged to let us know what they think. E-mail your comments to local-sports@nhregister.com.